Graduate students whose IELTS scores are in the provisional range must take an English proficiency placement exam upon their arrival on campus. Undergraduate students whose IELTS scores are in the provisional range must enroll in and complete UMEI005.

Please note that you may apply to the University even if your English proficiency scores do not meet the minimum requirements. However, the following provisions apply:

Graduate Students:

- If you are admitted to the University, it will be with a provision that you will take an English proficiency exam during orientation.
- Based on the results of the exam at orientation, it is very likely that you will be required to take further English courses, perhaps even full-time English in the first semester that you enroll.

Undergraduate Students:

- If you are admitted to the University, it will be with a provision that you will enroll in UMEI 005 – Semi-Intensive English during your first semester.
- This provision will not be met until you satisfactorily complete UMEI 005.

Exempt from submitting English proficiency scores:

- Students who have received a degree from an institution in the U.S. do not need to submit an English proficiency exam.
- Students from: The United Kingdom, English speaking Africa, Canada and the Caribbean, Ireland, Australia, Singapore and New Zealand are not required to take an English proficiency exam.
- The School of Music requires all non-native English-speaking students (including students with prior United States degrees) to submit English proficiency results.
- The School of Communication requires all non-native English-speaking students (including students with prior United States degrees) to submit English proficiency results.
- Transfer credit for an English composition course does not waive the English proficiency exam.

Note: International graduate applicants to the School of Music, including those who have earned a music degree from a U.S. institution, must submit a passing TOEFL score to be scheduled for an audition.
